RESEARCH

MHEALTH PROJECT | SCHOOL OF NURSING

Jan 2017 – May 2017 | Charlotte, NC

The goal of the mHealth mobile app is to enable effective communication and interaction with students enrolled in the pBMI+SP arm of the study. The mobile app is used for a wide variety of purposes, including data collection, intervention, behavior tracking, incentive offering and education. Moreover, the app has replaced current face to face meeting for MI (Motivational Interviewing) processes.

WOMEN'S HEALTH PROJECT | UNC CHARLOTTE PSYCHOLOGY DEPARTMENT

Aug 2016 – Dec 2016 | Charlotte, NC

Our goal was to understand how to better treat overeating, obesity and related problems for ethnic minority community members by developing effective and accessible intervention programs. In this project we were testing a culturally adapted self-help program for Latina women with eating problems to see if it is effective in reducing binge eating and obesity.
